

MDPAG Presents
DONNA GREENBERG
October 20 and 21, 2017

The 'Jello Pendant or Brooch' workshop – Friday October 20, 2017

These fun and funky pieces were inspired by that oldie but goodie dessert, Jello! Although they are not squishy, they do have some of that delicious coloring and slight translucent feeling of their namesake. Donna will share her unexpected and intriguing sculptural method for creating these dimensional Jello forms and show how to include them into a pendant or brooch. Students will also learn the method of coloring and glazing their piece to a lovely soft shine finish without need for much sanding. We will also make a polymer clasp for the necklace that matches the pendant. Class materials included are ball chain and pin backs as well as natural pearls and metal bead inclusions for adding a personal touch to your piece. A selection of small jello forms is also included and students can keep these.

The 'Mini Vessel' workshop – Saturday October 21, 2017

Mini vessels are small fantasies that fit in the palm of your hand but carry a big impact. Students will learn to hand form and texture their own mini vessels. The emphasis will be on sculpting using methods and techniques developed by Donna to create wonderful forms inspired by nature. Each student will be encouraged to create their own 'small wonder' in the class that will take you from your lump of clay right through to a beautifully hand colored work of art. We will be using acrylics and iridescent powders using Donna's translucent glazing methods to bring your piece to life. Inclusions such as natural pearls and tiny tumbled stones can be added for even more interest. This is a great class for beginners to advanced students who want to learn more about sculpting and painting polymer. Class materials included are a selection of small tumbled stones, pearls and crystals to accent students work.

Material List for students for both classes:

Polyform will provide clay for both classes

Acrylic roller and or pasta machine

X-acto knife w/number 11 blade

Tissue blade

Foam makeup applicator sponges, wedge style

Aluminum foil, paper towels, toilet paper
